HALLOWEEN WARNING TO PARENTS:

Trick-or-treat vampires seeking AIDS-free blood

Eye-opening sex survey is . .

A surprising 56 percent of women confess that they have faked orgasm with their current lover — and working women are far more likely to do it than housewives!

That's just one of the fascinating revelations of a super sex survey conducted by Redbook magazine. Published in its October issue, the poll of 1,019 readers revealed surprising information about who, what, where and how women make love.

The survey was based on 21 questions adapted from Love and Sex: The Book of Quotations by Gregory Stock (Workman Publishing Co., 1980). Here are some of the love secrets they elicited from Redbook readers:

● When asked whether they'd rather be twice as in love with their sweetheart as they are now, or have him be twice as in love with them, 53 percent of women said they'd rather have him twice as passionately in love.

About 45 percent said they'd rather be the most in love, but gals over 45 were much more inclined to want husbands to be the smitten ones.

● About 52 percent of women wanted an exciting, passionate relationship full of highs and lows over a calm, consistent relationship that was a little boring. Only 47 percent of women — usually more affluent or older women — said they'd want a calm, consistent and comfortable relationship.

● When asked whether they'd rather their partners were more jealous or less jealous, 38 percent of women opted for more jealousy. About 37 percent wanted him less jealous, thank you.

● When asked whether they thought their partners would love them more or less 10 years from now, 81 percent of women answered "more." And 82 percent of women polled thought they'd love their partner more in 10 years, too.

● If their relationship became frustrating and unhappy, 68 percent of women said they'd leave their partner while 31 percent confessed they'd have an affair, instead.

● To the question, "Could you fall in love with someone you weren't mentally attracted to?" 39 percent of women answered no and 45 percent answered yes. The more educated the women, the more she wanted sex appeal.

■ It would take two to five years for 36 percent of women to love someone new after their partner died, one year for 36 percent to recover, and less time for the rest. On the other hand, women felt their partners would recover more easily. About 43 percent thought it would take two to five years for their man to love someone new, 31 percent thought it would take only a year and 19 percent thought it would take even less time.

● If offered $500 for every day they abstained from sex, 12 percent of women polled said they couldn't last a day. But 18 percent said they could suffer through one day, 44 percent said they could make it for a few weeks, 14 percent said they could last three to six months, 4 percent said they could go a year — and 12 percent said they could remain lovelorn forever.

● If they had to choose between a tragic injury that left them deaf or one that numbed their entire genital region, 70 percent of women would rather hear.

● Compared to the early years of their relationships, 57 percent of women say they love their men more. Another 28 percent say they love their men about the same and 15 percent say they love their partner less.

● Most women — 78 percent of respondents — said their partners initiated sex in their relationships. Generally speaking, older women were more likely to initiate lovemaking than younger women.

● If their partners had a brief affair earlier on in their relationship, a slim majority of women — 50 percent — said they'd rather not know about it. But 46 percent said they'd want to be told, especially women who were less educated or younger.

REAL-LIFE vampires, like the movie/ Dracula (Christopher Lee with Virginia Carlson, above), will be out in force this Halloween — seeking an AIDS-free blood supply.

AIDS scare has fanged fiends looking for safe blood supply

By WARREN HANSON

A worried professor says AIDS-wary vampires will go trick or treating in the United States and Europe this Halloween — looking for a safe blood supply!

"They could knock on any door, maybe even yours," warned vampirologist Professor Vasily Ferenc.

"This threat is real and should be taken seriously by the local police authorities."

Professor Ferenc, 74, has spent the last 50 years of his life trying to find a cure for the dread virus that caused vampirism, so far without success.

"My sources tell me that there are 6,000 active vampires in North America and twice that number in Europe," the silver-haired expert from Budapest, Hungary, said. "Now, thanks to the AIDS crisis, they have entirely changed their habits.

"It used to be they preyed on prostitutes and helpless bums, but AIDS has ended all that.

"The vampires saw the many of their brethren die from the disease.

"Now they seek a wholesome blood supply from the veins of decent families like yours and mine where the risk of contracting AIDS is minimal.

"What better time to prowl the darkness than Halloween night, where their stark white Professor Ferenc, whose book, A Treatise on Eastern European Vampirism from 1810 to 1984, is still the most respected work on vampires and vampirism, continued: "I will be in Austria this Halloween where I know the exact location of a possible vampire attack, and I will have assistants in several other countries.

"But I'm afraid the United States must go unprotected. I simply don't have the manpower to spare.

"And finally, please don't open your door if the fanged fiend outside looks too real.

SOVIETS TAKE UFO

UFO passes over skyline of Russian city before landing in park in this artist's conception of the scene.

The captain of the shimmering silver starship that landed in a Soviet park earlier this month was captured and is now being held prisoner by the KGB!

That's the word from a Russian ham radio operator who saw the bell-shaped craft land in Voronezh on Wednesday, September 27 and watched as Soviet agents drove armed the extraterrestrial captain and spirited him away.

By DEREK CLONTZ

Heavily censored reports of the incident were first published by the official Soviet news agency Tass and later picked up by the Associated Press and published in newspapers across the U.S.

But they only confirmed that the starship landed — and totally disregarded the violent criminal tactics of the KGB.

"The captain of the UFO is in a Soviet jail and God only knows what the Russians are going to do with him," said Jacques Powers, a charge

SITE of the UFO landing was Voronezh, a Russian city 300 miles south of Moscow.

Soviets report UFO landing

MOSCOW — The official Tass news agency said in Moscow that witnesses had observed the landing of an alien spacecraft carrying giant people with two heads. The report, which is not clear, said ham radio operator who spoke with the Soviet ham from his base in Paris.

"My contact said the extraterrestrial was dressed in shiny red overalls — the others were in silver — and obviously in

CAPTAIN PRISONER!

Leader of spacecraft that landed in Russia Sept. 27 whisked away in KGB van!

KGB while he and his crew were surveying the landing site.

"He offered no resistance. He was actually very gentle. But the agents hit him with a club, stuffed him in the back of a black van and sped away," he said.

Powers refused to identify the Soviet hams for fear the KGB would arrest him, too. But hams in France, Sweden, Italy and Japan also heard the man's report and backed up what Powers said in published reports around the world.

Not surprisingly, Soviet officials denied the allegations and went on to say that the Tass and Associated Press reports about the landing of the spaceship were "fabrications."

But media analysts have better. Though censored and controlled by the Soviet government, the Tass news agency is considered to be exceedingly accurate.

And eyewitnesses who discussed the incredible encounter with Western journalists backed up both Tass and Associated Press reports that the starship landed while hundreds of people watched.

The aliens that emerged from the ship were said to be 9 to 12 feet tall with extremely small heads.

They were reportedly accompanied by a fireplug-shaped robot that took air and soil samples.

And they remained in the park for approximately 14 minutes before KGB agents arrived and arrested the captain of the ship.

According to the Soviet ham, the remaining aliens and robot ran back to their ball-shaped ship, which seemed to take on the form of a disc as it moved away and disappeared.

Gherkin Slitnov, head of the Voronesh Geophysical Laboratory, gave even more weight to the reports when he conducted tests at the landing site that proved extraterrestrials had been there.

A 80-foot depression and four deep dents left where the starship landed clearly showed that the craft had touched down in the park.

Two small rocks that fell out of the ship were tested and found to be unlike anything on Earth, he said.

Western intelligence experts would not comment on any of the reports for the record — even after a team of experts from the Soviet Union's prestigious Academy of Sciences were dispatched to the landing site.

> "He offered no resistance . . . he was actually very gentle but the agents hit him with a club . . ."

But privately they agreed that a spaceship landed in the Soviet Union. And they expressed grave concerns over the fact that the starship captain had been arrested.

"This is a very delicate and dangerous situation," said one Washington-based intelligence expert. "The Russians don't know who or what they are dealing with — nobody does.

"There could be reprisals. And if there are, the entire world could be held to blame for this interplanetic act of espionage."

Fears that the Soviets could get information of military significance from the aliens are not unfounded, added the source.

"There's no telling what kind of technology these extraterrestrials are privy to," he said.

"The Russians could get information that would render the Star Wars defense system obsolete before we get a chance to finish it." Stu Henderson, founder of the Bangkok UFO research group Galaxy, agreed "that this time the Russians have gone too far."

He also called on Soviet chief Mikhail Gorbachev to release the alien captain "before it is too late."

Ironically, the landing of the craft may have been prompted by U.S. psychic Andy Bates.

As reported in The NEWS, the California seer and millions of Americans telepathically asked space aliens to land in Chicago on October 2. The starship touched down in the Russian park a few days earlier on September 27.

ARTIST reconstructs the scene from eyewitness' descriptions of the three aliens, above, who emerged from spacecraft, top.

Did aliens zap teenage eyewitness with ray gun?

Did the extraterrestrials who landed in Russia shoot a 16-year-old boy with a laser weapon, causing him to disappear and then reappear a few minutes later?

In a follow-up report to the story of the UFO landing on October 9, the Tass news agency reported just that — setting off a controversy that is still raging today. Western analysts seem to be evenly divided on the issue. Some, like William Richards of London, called the report "unconfirmed disinformation — an obvious ploy by the KGB."

Others, like Peter Hartig of Frankfurt, West Germany, said the story "has all the appearance of truth and about the Tass news agency's record of accuracy, is almost certainly based in fact."

According to the report, the alien fired the laser weapon from the doorway of the starship, hitting the boy in the chest.

The young man vanished for almost 60 seconds before he reappeared and fell into a coma. He remained in that state for 3 days before he awoke, Tass said.

He suffered no lasting injuries, Tass said. American intelligence sources said the act of aggression — if it really did happen — may have been the aliens' way of retaliating for the arrest of their captain.

"It's possible that they wanted to show the Russians a sample of their firepower," a source in the Defense Department said.

Power company goof turns off woman's life-support system!

A woman on a life-support system in her home died when a power company worker turned off her electricity — thinking she was a deadbeat who hadn't paid her bill.

The fatal goof occurred when the company employee mistakenly shut off electrical service at the wrong East Chicago, Ind., house.

"The accidental disconnection was a tragic mistake, and we take responsibility for it," said Gary L. Neale, president of Northern Indiana Public Service Co.

"We have expressed our sincere regrets and condolences to the family and offered assistance," said Neale, who did not identify the dead woman at her family's request.

mowed up at the power company's service office between 10:30 and 10:40 a.m. to report the power had been turned off at 10 a.m. even though the sick woman's bill was not delinquent.

Neale said a call to restore service was made immediately after the company learned the woman was on a life-support system.

By the time power was restored at 11:10 a.m., the sick woman needed medical attention, said company spokesman Chris Combs. She was rushed to St. Margaret Hospital and Health Centers in nearby Hammond, where she died about 1 p.m.

Neale elaborated the horrifying error might have been averted if the woman had been listed with the company's Life Support Registry.

Such customers have their home meter tagged with a gold card.

"Their power is never shut off under any circumstances, according to company policy.

"Because we had no record of the customer's life-support system, the electric meter had not been tagged," said Neale. "Had it been, it would not have been disconnected."

Split-second mom!

She has second baby a year after first — to the minute

HAPPY parents Dianne and Eric Overby with their two children born at exactly the same moment one year apart.

Tickled mom Dianne Overby is one in a million — she had her second baby exactly one year to the minute after her first baby — 7:40 p.m. on September 16!

"They didn't plan it this way. We were all quite amazed," said Dianne's mother, Jane Harmon.

"We refer to them as our near-twin twins," said delighted Dianne.

She and her husband, Eric, weren't expecting the baby for another week, but Dianne went into labor on September 16 at Mercy Hospital in Oklahoma City, Okla. They were as amazed with the birth that at first they didn't realize their Jennifer was born at the same moment, 7:40 p.m., as their son, Jason, born one year earlier.

They were amazed when the remarkable coincidence was pointed out by nurse Theresa Tobin, who also helped deliver their first baby. Doctors said the odds were astronomical and knew of no similar case.

"September 16 will always be a very special day in our house," said the happy mom.

Eric said he thought the kids would always have a close bond.

"It will make them feel unique and special growing up, and they'll always have something to talk about," said the proud papa.

"It's a wonderful experience having a child in the first place, and this made it even more wonderful."

Eric and Dianne, both 33-year-old lawyers, put off having children for 10 years while they got through college and started their careers.

"Their friends are kidding them that they waited a long time to start a family but are catching up quickly," said Mrs. Harmon.

Blond, blue-eyed Jason takes after his mom, and tiny Jennifer has dark hair, just like her dear old dad.

The incredible timing of the births won't be repeated, though.

"We're definitely not going to be at Mercy Hospital on September 16 next year," said Dianne.

Lonely gunman just wants to chat

A Tampa, Fla., woman awoke to find a gun-toting man sitting beside her bed — but all he did was chat for nearly three hours about his marital woes!

The shaken woman, 21-year-old Dawn Mitchell, told cops he didn't threaten to harm her and just walked out of her apartment when he had said all that he wanted to say.

Cops said they have no clue to the man's identity.

"Ex-Truck Driver Gets $21,108 a Month Doing What You Aren't"

By Hardie B. Levin - Special Feature Writer

Orlando, FL. – "In only 6 months I went to a whopping $21,108.50 – and I can take any average person and show them exactly how to do it," declares Lawrence Tabak.

Tabak began a few years ago with humble beginnings as a truck driver. But the cash didn't start to roll in until he discovered this little known money making secret.

Now, on a trial basis, Tabak has begun to train everyday people, just like himself, how to duplicate his new system.

Already the results have been astounding. For example, one person in St. Augustine wrote that they had made $8,500 in an unbelievably short time!

"It is no shorter than you," he states, "only, I have discovered an amazing wealth system."

"Put my program into action," he says, "and you are admired driving your sparkling Mercedes, BMW, or Cadillac. You dazzle your friends with your new dream home. And people see you radiating like a champion."

"It made us more CASH on our regular job."

"You can really be the kind of person that you always wanted to be."

And what's more," he adds, "to make as many $ MORE, my way, requires little effort!"

"Look, there's no magic wand, and poof . . . you're rich. It does take time and work. But it's worth it. In fact," he adds, "I only want people who are willing to put forth some effort to use it."

Now, you may not make as much as Tabak, but if you are a real "Go-Getter," you will make even more. And above all, the nice part is that you win the respect of your friends and family.

Tabak has offered to send further details to readers who want to learn his new wealth system. Simply send your name and address to:

YOU BE THE JUDGE — The parents of little Bradley McGee are charged with murdering him by ramming his head into a toilet. We asked: If they are found guilty, what would be your sentence?

NEWS readers say:

FRY 'EM!

By HENRY WEBER

Thousands of NEWS readers can't be wrong. If Tom and Sheryl Coe are convicted of murdering their 2-year-old son by ramming his head in a dirty toilet they should fry in the electric chair — or worse!

That was the response we got from an overwhelming majority of readers who responded to a You Be the Judge Poll that ran along with our story on the murder of tragic Bradley McGee in September.

At the time we reported how Tom Coe, little Bradley's stepfather, and the boy's mother Sheryl have been charged with killing the tot because he dirtied his diapers.

Police in Lakeland, Fla., say the couple repeatedly ducked the boy's head in a filthy toilet and then beat him with heavy pillows because he was too young to control his bowels.

And if the Coes are convicted of the crime, NEWS readers say a simple execution or life imprisonment is too good for them.

"Dunk their heads in a toilet filled with you-know-what and then fry them; not once, but twice," wrote Mrs. J.S. of Phoenix, Ariz.

Phillip D. of Chicago, Ill., said: "Give me 15 minutes alone with those scumbags and they'll spend the rest of their lives wishing they had never been born."

"Dunk them over and over them, too," said Mary L. of Charlotte, N.C. "That cute little boy never had a chance. They shouldn't have a chance either."

A handful of the 37,000 letters that flooded NEWS offices suggested that the Coes are insane and should receive psychiatric counseling instead of a death sentence or life in prison if they're found guilty.

But virtually every other letter demanded that the boy's killers be punished to the fullest extent of the law and beyond.

"They're good for nothing. Kill them both," raged L.D. of Richmond, Va. "But I wouldn't kill them in a regular electric chair.

"I'd rig up an electric toilet and make them both sit on it while looking at a picture of their dead son."

W.G. of Saranap Valley, Calif., believes Coe should be locked in a prison cell with a gang of AIDS-infected homosexuals.

Sheryl Coe should be imprisoned in a cell with AIDS-infected lesbians, she added. "Even though we all know that the judicial system is probably going to slap them on the wrist and free them on probation."

Fawn H. of New York City suggested a unusually diabolical punishment for the boy's killers.

"Strip them naked and drag them down a splintery ramp," she said. "Then hang them upside down in the sun while their wounds fester and they rot to death slowly."

Many letters came from readers who were literally moved to tears by the story of tragic Bradley's death.

"My heart is broken," said one of those readers, Mrs. K.E. of Baltimore. "When I look at my own little boy and think of what those monsters did to Bradley, my heart just bleeds.

> 'I cried for two hours after I read the story . . . thanks for giving your readers a chance to speak out about it'

"I cried for two hours after I read the story. Thanks for giving readers a chance to speak out about it.

"Personally I think they should be punished as severely as our system allows. That may not seem harsh enough for some.

"But I assure you they will get what's coming to them from Satan and his burning lake of fire."

STAFFERS John Hanson and Violet Williamson prepare to open a single day's mail from outraged NEWS readers.

Coffee can bring on the blues

Coffee can make women more susceptible to premenstrual syndrome, says a new medical study.

Women who drink half a cup to four cups of coffee a day are twice as likely to experience PMS. The incidence rises tenfold between 4½ to 8 cups.

PMS can cause depression, fatigue, irritability, anxiety, headaches, swelling or tenderness of the breasts and a craving for sweet or salty foods.

The study was conducted by Arunlie Bussigord, associate professor of public health at Oregon State University in Corvallis.

'GOOD GUY ROBERT REDFORD IS A JERK'

He's not single in Heber City! Robert Redford's pro-nature stand has blocked progress in this small town, and its residents hate his guts!

Hollywood heartthrob Robert Redford may be worshipped by millions of moviegoers around the world — but his neighbors in little Heber City, Utah, hate his guts!

"He's a jerk," fumes hardware [redacted] Penny Larson.

"Probably the most hated man in this county," says Spenni Schwinn, a reporter for the Wasatch (County) Wave.

And Tinseltown's Mr. Good Guy, who owns the nearby Sundance Ski Resort, admits he's no hero in Heber City.

The hate's kicked off because Redford's [redacted] plan to straighten [redacted] of highway snaking its way from Heber City, past Sundance and on to Provo.

The environmentalist-actor reckons the idea stinks because the new highway would gobble up great chunks of breathtaking Provo Canyon, including a world-class trout stream and some of the most stunning rock formations in the world.

And townfolk think Redford stinks chasers alike for nearly two decades.

Recently, the Sundance Kid hopped off his high horse and began backing a compromise plan to improve the highway without chopping up quite so much scenery.

But hard-nosed Heber City isn't ready to forgive and forget.

COURAGEOUS Princess Di

It may not seem like a dream vacation to you, but during Princess Di is dying to visit a leper colony — to shake the disease-ravaged hand of a leper.

And the gentle Princess says she'll make the spine-chilling journey to the land of lost souls despite doctors' warnings that she might catch the nightmare ailment herself.

"This is something I want to do. Please arrange it," the courageous lady told palace aides.

Determined Di plans to visit the Indonesian leper colony this month to help eliminate the numbing fear that has crippled the doctor-shy victims.

The plucky Princess shocked friends and family earlier this year by embracing and shaking hands with AIDS patients to show the world they're not untouchable.

But experts say while visiting AIDS victims is generally safe, Di could be putting her life on the line when she ventures into a leper colony.

"Although leprosy is much harder to catch than it was thought years ago, there are well-documented cases of people catching the disease from brief encounters," said Dr. Vernon Coleman.

The good ol' boys at Mac's Saloon in Prescott, Ariz., almost dropped their longnecks when a motorcycle roared up outside and Bruce Springsteen hoofed in to wet his whistle.

The Bossman ordered a beer, then leaped onstage for an impromptu, hour-long jam session with the honky-tonk house band.

The rowdy rocker ripped through "Don't Be Cruel" and "Rock 'n' Roll," but when the band asked for "Pink Cadillac," Springsteen said he couldn't remember the words.

After posing for pictures, big Bad Bruce climbed back on his bike and roared off, followed by four burly bodyguards. Springsteen told band members he'd just rolled into town from L.A. and was headed for the Grand Canyon. — Palm Beach Post

The Rolling Stones may be the wrong role models for young people, but don't tell that to the folks at Cincinnati's Cincinnatian Hotel, where the bigger, grubbier Stones stayed during their recent trip to Ohio.

"I was really worried about their reputation as the 'bad boys of rock' but they weren't that at all — they were very personable and very cordial," said Mark Lamb, the hotel's security chief.

Mick Jagger & Co. kept the hotel staff hopping from the moment they checked in with their 100 trunks and suitcases, but they were gentlemen from the word go.

Just ask maid Cynthia Hannegraaf, who's been a Stones fan since she was 9 and managed to get to see the Osmonds, but when Jagger was leaving he gave me this big, pretty nude print and said he was going to give me his autograph," the delighted lady recalled. "But I told him I wanted something bigger — a hug. So I got to see the real thing. He was the nicest one. He gave me that great big, squeamish nice hug. He is really a very nice guy." — Cincinnati Enquirer.

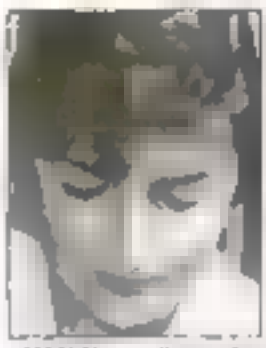
Mom and kids marooned on desert isle for 3 years!



CHICUB mom Kristina Swenson and twin daughters Resta (center) and Tania survived a three-year ordeal on an uncharted island

By MICKEY McGUIRE

A courageous widow and her twin daughters were marooned on an uncharted South Pacific island for three years. But her desperate two-mile swim through shark-infested waters finally enabled the family to return to civilization.

Heroic mom Kristina Swenson was 27 when she and her 8-year-old girls drifted onto the sandy beach of a remote, reef-girdled atoll far from regular shipping lanes or commercial flight routes.

Only five days earlier, Kristina's husband Jason, 28, was swept from the pitching deck of their 40-foot ketch, Sea Foe, as a war-provoked storm whipped waves and mountainous seas.

Terrified for the safety of her little girls, Kristina freed the survival raft lashed to the cabin top and tripped the inflation mechanism.

She and the children had just climbed inside when Sea Foe suddenly plunged to the bottom and the raft floated free.

"We were pounded by thundering seas for two days before the storm subsided and the raft washed ashore on the island," the courageous mom said from her hotel room in Port Moresby, New Guinea, four days after the family's rescue.

Only six weeks earlier, Sea Foe had left Auckland, New Zealand, for a leisurely cruise at Sydney, Australia, very well provisioned for a leisurely cruise through the Solomon Islands.

But four days later, Jason and Kristina's dream cruise turned into a three-year nightmare that would test the young mother to the limits of human endurance.

"The island is very small, but it is densely covered with coconut palms and breadfruit trees," Kristina said. "It had obviously been used by the Allied forces during the war. There were fuel drums, jerry cans and other abandoned gear and material scattered everywhere.

"We were a long way from the shipping lanes, but we knew that we had to keep a careful lookout for sharks that came in to feed. One showed up on our first week on the island."

Kristina and the girls — Sonya and Krista — built a hut of palm fronds and stalked some of the discarded army gear for tools and pots.

"We used several jerry cans to catch rain for drinking and wash water," Kristina explained. "And the Seth Thomas watch was an efficient lightweight glass for starting a fire.

"As unbelievable as it sounds, the island is brimming with wild life and we had a liberating source of food. But we always had to keep a careful lookout for sharks that came in to feed. One showed up on our first week on the island."

As the months passed, the family had given up all hope of ever seeing their home in Sydney again. Then like a miracle from heaven, a boat appeared about two miles beyond the barrier reef.

"I knew whoever was on that boat couldn't see us," Kristina said. "And I knew that if we were ever to get off the island, I would have to swim out to the boat. I knew the sharks were out there . . . everywhere out there. But I had to take the chance. It was our only hope.

"We never had a shortage of fresh eggs, but the chickens were hell to catch for food."

"But they didn't. I thank God I was really with me all the way. Finally, after about two hours, I reached the boat.

"There were five men on the boat and they couldn't believe their eyes when they saw me. There I was, a white woman splashing in the open sea and naked as a jaybird.

"The boat was a fishing trawler out of Port Moresby and the men had stopped in the lee of our island to repair their nets. They said they normally never come within 10 miles of the island.

"They sent a dinghy back for the girls and a few days later we were here in Port

It's the good old days again for today's college kids

Panty raids are back — hooray!

I'm prouder than J.R. Ewing after a Dallas oil swindle about how today's college kids are supporting the American way of life.

MY AMERICA

By ED ANGER

You might find a hippie or two crawling out of the ivy on some campuses now and then but business climates are blasting off the teams.

These new youngsters are learning what this great nation is all about — The Almighty Dollar.

From the late great General George Washington will think he's going to start Union Oil with Benedict all the way back to Jason's trip to Benedict Arnold.

But a lot of Mad Hungry and dads struggle to send junior off to college for the reason to learn to make money so they won't have to feed the bill for some pothead forever.

And girls go to college to compete. They've seen their dad trade off fraternity cars who know how to make a fast buck. The true spirit of going to college is back at last.

According to my latest student poll, 73% of girls believe sex up nearly 41 percent from 1968 and fast approaching the levels of the 1960s.

Now that's something to look to make money with girls the old college crowd what?

Panty raids are on their way as football and on some campuses they've even seen real teams of fraternity men [illegible] the [illegible] spirit.

The most [illegible] the most underpaid as all parties can get a free trip to [illegible]

It'll take those delighted [illegible] a swing from a girls dorm over the sound of cash registers [illegible] Business is [illegible]

And another thing. What [illegible] to make popular that pop writers no longer [illegible]

Just [illegible] to teach the 3 point Young Republicans Club of America to protect all the things they'll be able to buy when they graduate.

The M-16 assault rifle they learn to use in ROTC is better than all the lawyers in town when it comes to guarding their riches.

And instead of some stupid folk singer carving a guitar around the quadrangle these days the kids are carrying those new lightweight portable computers.

Here's the [illegible] Hippies don't stand a chance in Dallas to get a [illegible] Japs upside the head.

So here's a salute to all you college kids. You're the future of business and wealth in America.

WHEN this industrious student isn't out on a panty raid, this is his dorm room cooling of his computer.

YIKES! Black widow spider bites man right where it hurts!

VICTIM was using a portable toilet when he was bitten.

A black widow spider nearly killed a brawny construction worker by biting him on the penis!

By CHUCK HOE

"I was screaming, yelling and begging for someone to help me praying to God. The pain was so bad I wanted to die," said Bobby Edginton of Margate, Fla.

Edginton, 31, was bitten while using a portable toilet at a building site.

"I'll never use another one again," he said. The 5'8", 170-pound Edginton was treated [illegible] days in the hospital and is still [illegible] from the venom. Dr. Kenneth Glaser, who treated Edginton, says it could have been fatal.

Psychic dies when he tries to stop train — with his mind!

By HENRY WEBB

A Russian psychic was ground into hamburger under the wheels of a train when he stood on a track and tried to stop it with the power of his mind alone!

Alexei Frenkel had stupefied bystanders and cops with his thoughts and repeatedly dared that halting a train would be the ultimate proof of his skills.

PSYCHIC Alexei Frenkin was run over by a train when he tried to stop it with his mind

Witnesses said he stood square in the middle of a railroad track in Sverdlovsk, Russia. He raised his hands, closed his eyes and thought very hard — but the massive locomotive didn't even slow down. It just kept coming and smashed into him at top speed.

It was a terrible tragedy. Alexander Gorodnev, the head psychic researcher at the Soviet Academy of Sciences, [illegible]

Miner trapped for 13 days survived by eating human flesh!

By LAUREL BOWN

Horrified miner Jose Rodo spent 13 days trapped in a collapsed mine shaft but survived the spine-chilling ordeal — by eating the flesh of four dead pals!

"It was the most hideous thing I've ever had to do," heartsick Jose, 36, told reporters in Cerro de Pasco, Peru. "There were my friends, you know.

"But I had no way of knowing how long I would be stuck down there, and I knew I had to keep my strength up if I ever hoped to see my family again."

Jose's adventure in hell began when a collapse of a silver mine caved in south of Cerro de Pasco. The frightened fellow and five others imprisoned in a 30-foot section of tunnel with only bubbles killed by falling beams and rocks.

"A broken ventilation pipe gave me air but there was nothing to eat down there — not for rescuers when they got near. They would never come after me.

"So on the 10th day I prayed over my friends' bodies and I became a cannibal."

Courageous Jose stripped away his tobacco-hued flesh with a folding pocket knife and ate it raw and slimy," the disgusted dad told reporters. "I found the strength to eat it only by thinking of the time I would be reunited with the people I love."

That glorious moment came late on the 13th day when searchers clambered into hapless Jose's tiny prison and packed him up safely.

"Now I will spend the rest of my life praying that God will forgive me for the terrible thing I did down there," he vowed.

'I pray that God will forgive me,' he says

SILVER mines Jose Rodo stayed alive by eating the flesh of his four dead pals.

Police shot and killed two vicious pit bull terriers — after the dogs tried to eat a 600-pound cow alive.

The dogs had wrestled the cow to the ground, dragged it about 100 yards and were eating it alive when cops arrived on the scene in Manheigton, W. Va. Police Chief David James said he and another lawman shot the pit bulls when the dogs charged them.

"They just looked at us and let go of the cow and came for us," Chief James said. "I guess they thought we were going to take it away from them."

Listen up ladies! Here's expert advice on . . .

How to survive your hubby's mid-life crisis

Ladies, if your husband has traded in the station wagon for a sports car, dyed his hair and started flirting with younger women, watch out — he is probably in the mid-life crisis.

And even though about 20 percent of marriages fail at this crucial time, you can see that yours stays healthy by following the advice of an expert on the subject.

"Every man, sometime between the ages of 35 and 55, goes through a mid-life crisis," said Dr. William Nolen, author of "Cross Your Love Afterwards" and the Male at Midlife Crisis. Dead, Mead, $15.95).

"It's a difficult time for men and it's a difficult time for marriage, but women can help men pass through the crisis. All it takes is a little luck and lots of love and patience."

Dr. Nolen — a surgeon turned writer — says there are six major symptoms of midlife crisis to watch. These are abnormals, excessive use of alcohol, impotence, marital problems, job dissatisfaction and fear of ill health or death.

Here, exclusively for The NEWS, are his tips on how to help your man once you've spotted the symptoms of midlife crisis:

● Get him to open up and talk about his problems. Listen to what he says, and don't downplay his troubles — they are very real to him.

● Emphasize the positive. When he talks about how boring his job is, point out the benefits. Help him keep his perspective.

● Show him that you value him for himself. Let him know it's irrelevant that he'll never be head of the company.

● Work things out together. If he really can't stand his job, but you need the income, perhaps you could get a job and he could switch to another field.

Kiss it goodbye!

Thieves made off with more than a ton of silver shaped like Monkey's kisses, and the company might have to kiss the loot goodbye.

"We don't have any leads," admitted Reno, Nev., Undersheriff Bill Davis. He's hoping for a tip, though. "All good crooks brag about the jobs they pulled."

Cops think the $200,000 heist at Trinity Silver Mine near Lovelock was an inside job.

Hell-raising ghost forces couple to wear hard hats at home!

By JOE GERGER

Horrified hubby Ray Gough and his wife Josie eat, sleep and watch TV with steel hats on their heads — to [illegible] off vases, pans and paintings hurled at them by a grumpy ghost!

The pot-slinging, picture-flinging poltergeist invaded the Goughs' home a month ago, and the frightened couple hasn't had a moment's peace since.

"I know people will think we've got a screw loose but this house definitely has a ghost," panic-stricken Ray, 50, told reporters in Wolverhampton, England.

"And he's very angry about something. We never know when he's going to pull things down from the shelves or yank pictures off the walls and start throwing them at us. Sometimes it's like the Battle of the Bulge around here. We've been ducking and dodging things for weeks."

The petrified couple started ducking hard hats the day the spiteful spook bashed Ray with a teapot.

"We've been wandering around black and blue for a month, but this was the first time either of us was hit on the head," said the haunted hubby. "I saw the pot coming and tried to hit the deck, but it was too late and it slammed me pretty good.

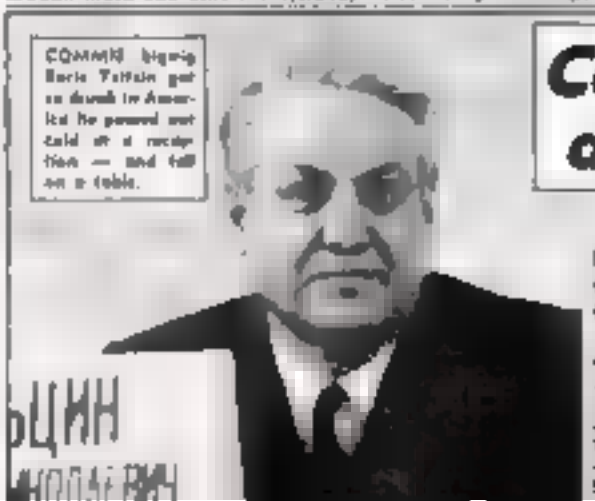
"That's when we decided to do something to protect ourselves. We don't want that thing to kill us."

Hat even with steel helmets on their heads, jobless Ray and his wife don't feel safe living under the same roof with a fireballing phantom. "We're going to get out of this house the first chance we get," wails jittery Josie, 48.

"Neither of us can relax here.

"This ghost obviously wants us out — and you can't fight what you can't see."

GAT Gough says he and his wife have to don hard hats around the home to protect themselves from flying objects aimed at them by an angry poltergeist.



COMMIE bigwig Boris Yeltsin got so drunk in America he passed out cold at a reception — and fell on a table.

Commie bigwig gets 'drunk as a skunk' — in America!

By BILL HAMMER

A Soviet politician got into hot water after he spent thousands of dollars and drank himself into oblivion during an eight-day tour of the United States.

Boris Yeltsin reportedly guzzled a quart and a half of Jack Daniel's whisky over the course of one night and brutally passed out on a table during a reception.

To top it off, he bought himself a new wardrobe, two VCRs and a slew of videotapes — including Hollywood nasties like Jaws. Yet when he returned to Moscow, he called the report "useless" after his return to Moscow.

But the Soviet newspaper Pravda didn't buy the denial, [illegible] propaganda, [illegible] interviews and shows all the pertinent of Jack Daniel's Black Label whisky."

But Jack Black wasn't all the thirsty Russian refreshed himself with. Insiders said he also enjoyed vodka like it was going out of style and helped himself to an empty cocktails at receptions that nobody could keep track.

Bulmer had been employed by the company for 20 years.

Wealthy doctor steals $1 million in rare coins

A wealthy doctor is accused of stealing $1 million in rare coins from a prestigious coin club that had just honored him as one of the club's benefactors.

Dr. Burns, a noted California heart surgeon, has been indicted by a New York City grand jury for grand larceny and criminal possession of stolen property.

The American Numismatic Society named Dr. Burns, 68, and his wife to New York party this year for an awards banquet to honor benefactors.

Since joining the society in 1984, Dr. Burns had donated more than $100,000 in cash and coins. He gave the society about $37,000 in coins and pledged another $10,000 in cash just days before his arrest. As a member, Dr. Burns had access to the society's $1 million coin collection.

Soon after the gala banquet, curators discovered at least 71 of the rare coins were missing from the collection. The finger of suspicion eventually pointed to Dr. Burns.

Detectives reportedly found 13 rare coins worth $100,000 in Dr. Burns' New York hotel room a few months later. The other 58 coins were found in Dr. Burns' personal collection in Chatsworth, district attorney spokesman Gloria Mastrangelo told The Advocate.

Dr. Burns told cops in a videotaped confession after his arrest that he loved the coins and "couldn't live without them," according to Miss Mastrangelo.

But in later testimony before the grand jury, Dr. Burns reportedly said he had always planned to return the coins, and was only using them for research for an article.

Dr. Burns, whose personal collection of ancient coins is valued at $5 million, is free on $50,000 bond. He has pleaded guilty to the charges.

Today's singles: More talk — less sex!

Today's singles are dating just like their grandparents did — by getting to know each other instead of jumping right into the sack.

The "talking date" is all the rage for trendy young singles, but this fad is nothing more than a return to traditional normalcy because of fears about AIDS.

"Not to longer take women to bed," said New York college student Harriet Crosby. "Nowadays, you don't want what is crawling around in clubs," he said.

The reason is simple FEAR. "People are not willing to date around a lot because of AIDS," said single dentist Bruce Blitz. "People want to know more about each other because there is more at stake."

All this is making for a lot of good, old-fashioned talking.

"The best date I ever had was talking for six hours with a man who had just ended a long relationship," gushed 25-year-old actress Rita Gold.

Depressed folks are wiser, says top shrink

People who are constantly down in the dumps can feel good about one thing — they're probably the shrewdest folks around.

According to famed psychologist Dr. Stanley Parker, it just isn't true that depressed people have an overly grim outlook on life.

Instead, folks who walk around with a hangdog appearance are usually those who are smart enough to realize just how miserable things are.

"The depressed are wise judges of realities," said the Harvard psychologist. "In fact, it is the non-depressed who appear to distort evidence in the direction of optimism."

Sicko beats family's pet — and then microwaves it!

. . . but courageous pooch survives savage attack

GRATEFUL Chad Cain holds his plucky pooch Gus. She's made a remarkable comeback from her horrible ordeal

A savage punk beat a lovable little schnauzer with a chain and cooked her in a microwave oven, but the plucky pooch is making a miraculous recovery.

Amazed cops and vets said two things about courageous canine Gus from being until she exploded. The fiend set the timer for 10 minutes but the oven stopped after 1½ minutes, and Gus's disgusted bewildered ob- served most of the deadly micro waves.

"It borders on the bizarre. This is just one sick-os versaremes," said Police Staff Sgt. Bob Hunt of Waterloo Canada.

Gus's owners, Dennis and Nancy Lutz of nearby Kitchener, are sick- ened and outraged. Their family had befriended the 15-year-old boy charged in the attack. Officer Wayne Allen said the attacker was obviously a sicko. "We hope he gets some help. We don't want him growing up and pulling people in microwave ovens."

The Lutz family worries that some bleeding-heart liberal judge will let the lad off on the boy.

"If I'd have gotten my hands on him — I'm not very strong, but I'd have done my best," said Mrs. Lutz. "I hope this kid pays, and I know if he doesn't, a lot of people are going to be irate."

Hundreds of furious animal lovers have called the family and nearby radio stations.

The good news for the Lutzes is that their perky pet is making quite a remarkable comeback. Though she has a battered ear, severe bruises, a busted left jaw and partly cooked intestines, 9-year-old Gus is doing fine.

...le operation fixes bizarre birth defect

Teen with 2 noses is ready to face the world!

By SUSAN JAMISON

For years tragic teen Gary Waquaroba hid away from the stares of strangers — because he had two noses on his face!

Now, thanks to skilled surgeons who have repaired his bizarre birth defect, Gary, 19, is determined never to hide again: He wants to face the world and lead a normal life.

"No pain from a surgeon's knife is as bad as the cruel insults flung at me by other people," said Gary, who has undergone 50 operations to repair his tragic condition. "I've seen people stare over their shoulders to catch a second glimpse of me and smash straight into a lamppost.

"Children run and hide from me and cruel people taunt me wherever I go. But I'm determined not to hide myself away. I want to face the world."

When the Chelmsford, England, youth was born, he had more than half a face. He had to sip milk from a dish like a cat because he was missing his upper lip, a roof to his mouth and a normal nose.

The boy underwent surgery to help him survive and eat normally — then the heart-breaking process of rebuilding his face began.

While Gary was 6, surgeons worked 15 hours to create a nose out of his rib before using skin grafts. But the child's body rejected the transplanted tissue — and while Gary was left with a hole-like hump of flesh on each side of his face.

"I knew by then that I was some kind of walking freak show," Gary recalled.

"It was happened in the hospital because the other kids were on the same boat. We accepted each other for what we were."

While in the hospital Gary learned to draw and art became his favorite subject. At a special school for the handicapped Gary excelled, scoring at the top of his class. When he was 10 he underwent a second operation — and this time doctors were successful.

Gary came out of surgery with a real nose built by surgeons using plastic cartilage. But although his appearance was greatly improved by the operation, Gary still has a scar like a Halloween mask.

Now that he's graduated from school Gary dreads a job like any other boy and he wants to marry and settle down. But his odd looks are still getting in his way, he says.

"The only jobs I've been offered are as an office cleaner or in chicken factories," he said. "That isn't for me — I'm a commercial artist and just want to be given a fair chance.

"And I want a wife and dozens of kids of my own one day. Babies don't see your defects. They just love you."

SPECIAL: Gary Waquaroba hid from strangers' stares.

Cats can learn tricks just like dogs!

. . . says feline psychologist

By CHUCK HOE

Cats are clever critters that can be taught tricks as easily as dogs, says a feline psychologist.

"Cats can be trained to use the toilet, and they can be taught to flush. But don't teach them to flush. They'll be flushing all day long," said Prof. Kilsen B. Karsh of Temple University in Philadelphia. "It takes five minutes to teach a cat to sit up and beg. You can teach them to fetch with no trouble."

Dr. Karsh led a five-year study that revealed the secret of what makes a cat a good, friendly pet. Kittens must be handled when they're as young as 3 weeks old. Otherwise, they'll turn into snooty "feisty cats."

Next, Dr. Karsh wants to study which breeds make the best pets for different kinds of people.

"Most people just go by the appearance and the color of the cat.

"The personality of a cat is much more important. Some people can't stand a frisky, playful cat. They want a quiet lap cat."

One thing she already knows is that timid people shouldn't buy a shy cat.

Dr. Karsh, one of the world's few academic experts on cat behavior, says he spent a lot of time observing her beloved animals.

"It's strange. dog behavior has been studied for a long time, but nobody has done much with cats.

"Unfortunately, most of the time when you see cats in the laboratory, they have electrodes in their heads."

Groom gets life in prison for tossing his bride into the sea

GROOM Scott Boston

By JACK ALEXANDER

A cruel-hearted killer was sent to prison for life after tossing his unsuspecting bride into the sea during their honeymoon cruise to Mexico.

Pretty blonde Karen Boston was beaten and strangled by her hubby, Scott, 36, who dumped her alive into the Pacific and made up a cock-eyed story about her death.

"He told the ship's officers his wife was blown overboard, and when the captain questioned that, he made up a ridiculous tale about Israeli terrorists," Assistant U.S. Attorney Kendra McNally said at his trial.

"The simple truth is that he strangled her as tightly all the muscles in her neck bled. But Karen was still alive when he threw her overboard," said Atty. McNally.

The motive-cuddly newly weds were on the last night of a honeymoon cruise aboard the Star Dancer when Karen, 30, met her grisly demise.

"He planned a watery grave for his bride, but the Coast Guard spotted the white tips of her tennis shoes and fished her out of the ocean," said Atty. McNally.

When ship's officers didn't believe his lie about a sudden gust of wind blowing her overboard, Boston said he and his wife had been attacked by Israeli terrorists in retaliation for a book he had written entitled Nephemure in Israel. But a jury wrote on the Division of Motor Vehicles and recommended revoking his pedestrian's driver's license.

The license suspended is indefinite. And Sweet is on appeal that he's hired a lawyer.

BRIDE Karen Boston

Los Angeles federal court jury found him guilty of second-degree murder in March.

U.S. District Judge James Ideman recently sentenced Scott Boston to life in the slammer.

BOSTON: Scott and his wife was blown overboard and later said terrorists were responsible.

Death was aboard honeymoon cruise

Man busted as 'glassy-eyed drunk' shocks cops — he has a glass eye!

Cops hauled Vincent Logan down to the slammer for being drunk because he looked "glassy-eyed." He did, but not because he was drunk, but because he has a glass eye.

That little encounter between Logan and the law has resulted in a $3 million slander suit against the town of Marshfield, Mass., by Chapter 38 of the Disabled American Veterans.

Logan got an eye shot out and three fingers blown off in the Korean conflict. He spent 2½ years in a prisoner of war camp.

A bartender at the DAV club in Marshfield had Jesse Logan had stayed around after the club closed at 1 a.m. to fix a leak in the boy's gas eye washer, the suit says.

Police Sgt. Timothy Cutler and another officer were cruising the town when they saw Logan asleep in his car. They investigated. The officers said Logan was glassy-eyed and had alcohol on his breath when they took him to the station.

Based on that incident, the town later revoked the club's liquor license. No one is permitted to drink there after 1 a.m.

"But Logan says he wasn't drinking and we believe him," said DAV attorney Gerard Lane. "He said he was dizzy after inhaling some gas from the car washer while he taped up the leak. And his eyes looked glassy because he has a glass eye and his other one is watery."

The suit alleges police didn't give Logan any test for alcohol when they arrested him. Instead, they took him to the station and booked him for drunkenness.

The DAV club got a temporary restraining order to keep the town's Board of Selectmen from enforcing the license revocation.

They hope a judge will make the order permanent at an upcoming hearing.

"We've filed the slander suit because we think the town has done the club and particularly Mr. Logan a grave injustice," said attorney Lane.

"The police really didn't prove he was drinking, let alone that he was drunk."

A spokesman for the town of Marshfield declined to respond until the town's attorney files an answer to the suit.

WORLD'S MEANEST HUSBAND

He lived like a king and treated his wife like a slave!

By LAUREL DOWN

Moneybags banker Martin Danielson was the world's stingiest husband, a skirt-chasing rat who dressed in $900 suits, drove a shiny new Ferrari and dined on steak and lobster — while his poor wife Shirley wore rags and survived on potatoes and beans.

And even in death, mean Martin tried to keep his money out of Shirley's hands — by willing his entire multi-million-dollar fortune to his younger brother.

"The man obviously was a tyrant, a self-centered brute who held Mrs. Danielson in total slavery while he lived like a king," said outraged Judge Morris Balcombe in London, England.

"Her life was worth a eight-more for more than two decades and she deserves a substantial portion of his fortune. It is the only just way to resolve this sad affair."

Shirley's heartbreaking ordeal began shortly after she married the dastardly Danielson 23 years ago.

"When we were in the restaurant where I worked, he swept me off my feet," said the weak-kneed widow.

"He was so dashing, so charming. Even then he had money, though not nearly as much as he had when his first grandchild began to grow. We traveled for three months and he treated me like a princess."

But the princess bubble burst a couple days she married down the aisle.

Suddenly he started laying down the law — she recalled.

He said that he was the one who was making the money and he was the one who would spend it.

My job was to stay home and take care of the house so I'm his words when he decided to make him her dinner — and to keep my mouth shut."

For the next 20 years Danielson led the life of a carefree bachelor, consorting with a string of pretty girls partying in London's fashionable nightclubs and dining on the city's richest restaurants.

While her hubby played sky Shirley made do on a $20-a-week allowance wearing thrift-shop dresses and living on little more than a starvation diet.

When Danielson died of pneumonia at the age of 82 he left everything to his brother and business partner Bob.

But the shocked widow contested the will and Judge Balcombe awarded her a whopping $350,000.

"You've earned every penny of it," the judge told her.

Woman writes with both hands at the same time — forward with her right & backward with her left

By SUSAN JIMISON

Senior citizen Ellen Connor has a talent that stuns scientists: She can write with both hands at the same time — forward with the right hand and backward with the left!

The bewildering Ms. Connor's ability is an area she has been studied by researchers. They've concluded she is using both sides of her brain at the same time, something most people cannot do.

"It's very strange — I can draw houses, trees and things like that with both hands at the same time," Miss Connor, a retired accountant, told The News.

"You can dictate figures to me and I can take them down at the same time with both hands and then add them simultaneously."

"At the University of Pittsburgh they told me I have this ability to a degree they had never seen before. And it's one thing tells me I'm a step forward of human evolution."

Miss Connor says she's had her wonderful skill since she first began to read and write. But she didn't realize there was anything unusual about it until both her mother and sister could do it, too.

Then a disbelieving psychologist learned of her ability and urged her to volunteer for an extensive study at the University of Pittsburgh.

There, experts told her, they'd never met anyone like her and couldn't explain exactly how she does it.

What she does: Writing or drawing or doing math backward comes as naturally to her as writing, drawing or doing math forward does to other people. She explained:

"I don't have to retrain my brain to write backward. We know the brain is divided in halves, the right hemisphere and the left hemisphere.

"Between the halves of the brain is something called the corpus callosum, which acts as a transmitter of information between the two hemispheres. Apparently my corpus callosum works very well.

"I can use both hemispheres of my brain at the same time."

POWER PENMANSHIP: Ours say the answer is a super brain. Ellen Connor proudly displays her handiwork. She wrote these examples at the same time.

BEGGAR BASHER

A ruthless killer is preying upon the world's most wretched people!

Called the Sleepman, he creeps up on sleeping beggars in the horrible slums of Calcutta, India, and smashes their heads with a 10-pound rock. He has killed seven people so far.

Calcutta, with at least six million people, has a shifting population of more than 50 a year and has never had a serial killer before. The Sleepman has cops and the public stumped.

"We are going back to the Stone Age. Killing each other with stones — it shows what kind of progress we have made," fretted police chief Ranjit Gupta.

Buried in notes and letters? You're a PAPERHOLIC

People who can't get rid of old paper around the house may be suffering from a disease called paperholism.

That's the word from Barbara Hemphill, an organization expert who says many people hang on to everything from old Christmas cards to school tests because they're afraid to throw them in the trash.

"Paperholics are people whose lives are hampered significantly because of their inability to deal with paper," said Miss Hemphill, founder of Paper Tamers Inc., a Washington consulting firm for people who can't get rid of paper.

"I've heard from people whose marriages have broken up over paper. There are folks whose houses were condemned by the fire marshal, and who haven't had anyone in their houses for years because they're ashamed of their mountains of their paper."

Weirdo steals human toes!

By JACK ALEXANDER

A farm worker cut off the toe of a corpse laid out in a mortuary and preserved it in a jar at his home — along with five other human toes, cops said.

"We're dealing with a world-class weirdo here," said Pennsylvania State Trooper Franklin Duddy.

John Reed, 37, told cops he sneaked into a funeral home in 1985 and hacked off the toe from the body of 19-year-old Brian Peery, who died in a fishing accident, according to Trooper Duddy. "He won't say why he did it. He just did it," said the trooper. "And he doesn't even want to talk about the other toes."

State police found two big toes, one middle toe and two little toes in the glass jar when they searched Reed's trailer near Brunkerville.

Cops noticed permission to open Peery's grave to find out if his corpse was missing, more than one toe, but the boy's family objected and the judge refused.

. . . AND KEEPS THEM IN A JAR, SAY COPS

Reed's bizarre toe collection might have gone undetected if he hadn't had wild delusions of a 13-year-old girl whom he planned to rape, mutilate and murder, said Trooper Duddy.

"He offered to pay a rough boy to bring the teenage girl to a bare in a remote area," said the trooper. "After sex he planned to kill her and have extensive surgery of her body."

Bad guess were tipped off to Reed's fiendish plans, said Trooper Duddy. He was waiting in the dark for the girl to be brought to him and got no involved," said the trooper.

Reed was jailed on $100,000 bond at the Jefferson County Jail, charged with criminal at-

Riding a bike can be bad for your sex life!

Long bike rides can make men impotent!

"We've known for a long time that varying degrees of groin discomfort had been associated with long bike rides. But the impotence connection is fairly new," said Dr. Paul Fabich, a urologist in St. Paul, Minn.

"It sounds absurd, but the pressure on the penis is right up the middle of the body. The seat is hollow, but if you apply pressure you can make the nerves go to sleep. Just like your leg or arm would go to sleep," said Dr. Ulrich.

One potential male victim has problems by adjusting his seat. Other tips: Use a different seat that spreads the load, wear padded bike shorts or reduce mileage.

WOW! These 13 stones came out of pooch's belly!

Dr. David Strachina shows off the collection of rocks he removed from Cocoa's stomach.

Dumb dog eats rocks!

Not long ago this wobbly-looking pooch clunked and rattled like a junkyard chevy — until a kindly vet removed the pile of rocks she had gobbled up!

The dead-as-a-stone black and tan Cocker/chi had a real taste for rocks. It wasn't all that long getting them into her stomach — but getting them out was another matter altogether!

After passing out the night she had eaten the last load of rocks, Cocoa's owners, Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] of Sunset Strip, Calif., brought her to Dr. David Strachina's animal hospital in Salinas, Calif.

The doctor opened Cocoa up and quickly found the cause of her trouble — 13 walnut size rocks and a plastic doggie dish the pooch had gobbled up!

So if one of your pooch friends loves rocks as much as Cocoa did — but you'll be the first to know if you don't want to [illegible]

Man builds pool in wrong yard!

David Brady built a lovely pool and patio behind his home — and found out it wasn't on his property!

The Manchester, N.H., homeowner had already splashed down $30,000 on the project before a survey revealed that the pool was on land owned by the Manchester Water Works.

Water commissioners say they're deciding if they'll make Brady remove the patio and pool.

My hubby robbed the cradle and left me with the baby

Dear Dottie: I'm 31 and for four years I thought I had a happy marriage. My husband treated me wonderfully and two years ago we had a beautiful baby girl.

Things changed when I turned 30. He started calling me "old lady" and he meant it. (He's 36 himself) but he says a woman over 30 is over the hill.

To make a long story short, he started playing around and my girlfriend told me she had seen him out with a very young girl. I confronted him about it and we had a big fight.

It was at that that he moved out and left me with our baby. Now I've got to decide whether to try to win him back or file for a divorce. Should I give him another chance or not? This is going to be the biggest decision of my life, Dottie, and I value your advice — Need Help in Atlanta

Dear Need: Give him an ultimatum? Are you out of your mind? Say "good riddance" to your cradle robbing hubby and find yourself a man with opportunities a woman or gentleman of her age. By the way if hubby's new girl is under 18, she isn't of legal child bearing

Dear Dottie: A few weeks ago my best friend applied for employment in the office where I work and got a good job — what I know I should be happy for her but I know she's a little bit home and I have a heavy feeling she slept with the boss to get the job.

I want to confront her with my suspicions but I don't want to ignore her and damage our friendship. If you were in my shoes what would you do? Should I leave well enough alone? — Need to Investigate

Dear Need: I'll bet you did have to sleep with the boss to get your job. Why don't you just ask her? I hope not because I'd feel like a fool to think that I've enjoyed it for all these years when the whole thing was an act. — Wondering in Maryland

Dear Wondering: Some people are sensitive to such things. I'm not one of them. I enjoy the mystery of different people, each myself and enjoy them completely. The guys don't remember me because by reports athletes and in my style. If you enjoy sex they keep on wondering. You should treat it as a feat for enjoying yourself. I certainly don't.

Mother saves baby from drowning — in washing machine

By CHUCK HOE

A baby got stuck in a washing machine and it was churning him around, but his level-headed mom plucked him out in the nick of time and saved his life.

"I couldn't believe it when I found him. Only his legs were sticking out, and the machine was splashing him around. My heart nearly jumped out of my throat, but I kept my cool," said Mandy James of Newport, England.

"I hauled Lee out of the water, and he was limp like a rag doll."

She ran into the street, where passing cyclist Simon Barnes sprang into action and gave the baby mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

"He spent 10 hours in the hospital, but in the end the doctor said he was fine," said Mrs. James.

She was hanging up laundry in the yard when 20-month-old Lee fell into the washing machine and got jammed at his shoulders.

"It's a miracle he's all right. From now on I'm just going to let my little Lee out of my sight.

"He's too precious for anything to happen to him," said the happy mom.

Super granny has a whopping 154 great-grandchildren

Great-grandmom Elizabeth Graber has so many great-grandchildren that she can't remember all of their names. But the 87 year-old super-granny from Allentownville, Ind., has a good excuse — she's got a whopping 154 of them.

Their ages range from 6 weeks to 30 years, and they are scattered from Indiana to Pennsylvania and from Illinois all to Canada. But grandpa Graber still manages to see most of her great-grandchildren at least once a year.

Barflies toss beer trying to save human torch's life

Barflies watched in horror as a man strolled into a tavern, doused himself with gasoline and set himself ablaze.

Shocked drinkers tossed beer on the human torch in a vain effort to put out the fire. A quick-thinking off-duty cop saved the life of Ray Conley, 46, by dousing him with a fire extinguisher.

Officer Kirk Wilson was in another room in the tavern in Smethwick, England, when the incident happened.

"All I could see was an object covered in flames, and I presumed it was a table or chair," he said.

"I grabbed an extinguisher and realized it was a man on fire when he tried to grab me."

The badly burned man was rushed to a hospital where he is fighting for his life.

'Wife Wanted' sign brings women by the dozen

COURTESY boy Jerry Hensley's sign is working TOO well considering the single part.

By JACK ALEXANDER

Down-home bachelor Jerry Hensley stuck a sign in his front yard saying he's a lonely "old country boy" — who's looking for a wife.

"Wanted — single woman, 21 to 45, non-drinker. Will accept two kids. Share expenses. Good clean home. Only sincere apply. See Jerry," the sign reads.

Hensley, 48 and a Vietnam vet on total disability, is looking for "an honest, down-to-earth woman who cares about the simple things in life."

"I want someone with good old country common sense," he told The NEWS. "I don't want no educated fool.

"If they don't like country music, sell them out to sleep by. I am a country boy at heart. I was born in Harlan, Ky., and I listen to country music. That's all that plays in my house."

Women are already flocking to his Knoxville, Tenn., home for a look-see. "One of 'em was so fat you'd need a wrecker to get her up on the porch," he said. "And three of the five wanted to spend the night with me. I flatly refused."

Hensley is a former truck driver and ex-cop. He was married 17 years until his divorce three years ago. He is the father of five kids, aged 9 to 17.

"I haven't dated a woman in three years. I'm getting a little tired. I want some female companionship," he said.

He is 5-foot-11, 140 pounds and smokes but doesn't drink.

"I'm disabled but I'm not crippled," Hensley said.

His ideal woman would be 5-foot-4, dark hair, blue eyes. "She doesn't have to have money. She must be an honest, clean and decent gal," he said.

Hensley offers a home, love and companionship.

If you would like to get in touch with him, write Jerry Hensley, c/o Weekly World News, 600 South East Coast Ave., Lantana, Fla. 33462.

Disney World charged with killing off birds

Walt Disney used to produce loads of nature films, but Uncle Walt must be spinning in his grave now — his company is accused of killing 15 endangered black vultures.

Employees at Walt Disney World trapped vultures on Discovery Island because they were disturbing other animals.

The birds were cramped in a windowless, airless box, says the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission.

One worker is accused of beating and killing several vultures with a stick while they were in traps.

Prosecutors say Disney employees also took eggs and nests of egrets and ibises and tried to catch wild hawks, falcons and owls that lived on the nature island.

"We had no intention to violate any law," said Disney spokesman John Dreyer.

YOUR

You can learn what makes your kids tick simply by consulting the zodiac. And knowing their personality traits will make it easier to guide them in the right direction. Here's what's written in the stars about your offspring:

Aries

(March 21 - April 19)

BOY — This little guy has tremendous energy and needs to be kept busy. A natural rebel, you can expect defiance, quick temper and sudden tantrums. He's extremely independent and must be taught to obey — but ask, don't order. He's intelligent and curious, but needs to be encouraged. Follow through has to be taught. He has confidence in himself and likes to lead. He has an open and frank personality. The ability to forgive and forget almost instantly, has a vivid imagination and is creative. But he can also be fiery and domineering. And he feels it's his right to be the center of attention.

GIRL — She has a tomboyish charm, vivid imagination, skill and daring. Is a natural leader and has a belief in her ability to win. With her keen mind learning comes naturally. She rarely holds a grudge, and while her temper can be hair-trigger she can forgive and forget. She loves to dress up and play make-believe games, but enthusiasm wanes fast. Her opinions aren't at all subtle, but they are presented without obvious pomposity. She also is loyal.

She does have a few faults — she's not a good loser and needs to be taught tolerance and team spirit.

Taurus

(April 20 - May 20)

BOY — He may not be a born leader but he has tremendous creativity. A practical yet tender little dreamer, he has a need for affection and a settled, stable and protective environment. Any living thing will bring out a protective instinct in him. He's usually sweet-natured, but can be a little stubborn. The urge to spoil this gentle little boy will be strong, but what he needs is discipline. Use diplomacy and don't get impatient and push him — he'll get there eventually.

GIRL — She is nearly always cheerful and pleasant, and very amiable. Very feminine, she loves to play at homemaking. This little girl is sure to be beautiful and loves to be fussed over. While full of fun, she can also become stubborn.

Teasing and thoughtless behavior can arouse anger in her straightforward, commonsense mind and usually gentle nature. Organize her time, but be patient — it will bring out her basic creativity. Lead, don't push. While she may be a slow-starter in school, she'll be a determined student.

Gemini

(May 21 - June 20)

BOY — Physically and mentally the most active of the 12 zodiac signs, you'll need all your wits to keep up with this boy. Gemini boys are bright, happy, inquisitive and early starters. He's highly imaginative, but fantasy tends to lag reality. Don't stifle his imagination or tie him down to dull routine — he dislikes restriction. His ability to make up stories could be channeled into a writing career. He's also good with his hands and should enjoy handicrafts, painting and playing musical instruments. He runs largely on nervous energy and needs to be taught to relax.

GIRL — She's a veritable bundle of lively, winning charm, but also mischievous. She has a boundless curiosity and an insatiable desire to learn and understand. She has the ability to be mentally in two places at once. Encourage her natural talent for writing, but help her to see the difference between fact and fiction. She also has a talent for languages. She's a sponge for knowledge and should read early and avidly.

Cancer

(June 21 - July 22)

BOY — Mum is likely to be the most important person in his early life, and often through his life. He is a gentle, sensitive, loving boy and responds to affectionate handling.

He needs a sense of security early in life. He may shy away from more active children and retire into a dream world with make-believe friends because of his sensitivity. Be tolerant of this hesitancy with his subjectivity comes great creativity. This could be channeled into success in art or music.

GIRL — Her early home life is of prime importance — training and ideas she gains then will have an impact on her future because she has a formidable memory and will mentally record events very early. Extremely sensitive, her moods may mask artistic talents that need only be encouraged to bring them out. She also has a sense of humor and is very family oriented.

Encourage her in the garden — she's likely to have a "green thumb." And allow her to have a small cuddly pet.

Leo

(July 23 - Aug. 22)

BOY — He's straightforward and truthful, but will get into trouble because he's physically very active. Not a walker, he's more likely to let fly with a fist than nurse resentment when provoked, but then the incident will be forgotten. He will defend a friend to the death. But he's also cheerful, enthusiastic, optimistic and believes in his superiority. His proud bearing is obvious from the start, yet is rarely offensive. Still, a direct challenge to his superiority can produce instant rebellion. It's better to suggest than order — his pride is great, so never make fun of him.

GIRL — She is a proud mistress of all she surveys and a great manipulator of your emotions. She has a sunny extroverted disposition and her warm ready smile will ensure popularity even though she has to be leader in any game. She will love to be fussed over and admired. Flattery will get you further than a command — try to encourage her natural enthusiasm and optimism. She is courageous and probably will be good at sports.

Virgo

(Aug. 23 - Sept. 22)

BOY — He will sometimes walk with class family and friends — even be a clever-lad — but will be quiet, shy and retiring around strangers. Gentle and sensitive, he will react badly to too much scolding and will become introverted when hurt. But he's a quick starter, and probably will talk early and surprise you with his observations. He could tend to take life too seriously and you may have to teach him a little light-heartedness. He is a practical mind and he doesn't go off into unreal flights of fancy. He prefers factual stories to fairy tales.

GIRL — She is aware of her own needs and the needs of those around her. Is loving, steadfast, and looks to her parents as shining examples. Perfection is her goal, and she can be fussy and determined, and preoccupied with her appearance and well-being almost from the time she can look to a mirror. But she is not strong in self-confidence. She risks becoming a "doer not." She is friendly by nature, but large groups can intimidate her.

Libra

(Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)

BOY — He is cheerful, naturally polite and tactful. Aware of his power to charm, he will use it. However, he's not as soft as he appears — there can be shows of temper. He expects fair play and would make a good referee. He's intuitive and his first instinct is most likely the accurate one, so try to instill in him the courage of his first convictions. He lacks confidence in many ways, but rarely shows it. He's not a physical type, and is more interested in books, paintings and music.

GIRL — She can command attentions through her charm and by a tiny crinkling of her little fingers — even though she looks subject at keeping up appearances as well as wielding an iron fist in a velvet glove. You may not be able to get as close to her as you would like because she won't allow it. And she will learn only what she considers important. Mood swings can also occur. She loves to do little things to please you.

Scorpio

(Oct. 23 - Nov. 21)

BOY — Whether this boy stars like the aggie or develops the sting of a scorpion depends on early environment. He's tension, intense, reserved, intuitive, secretive, has dark moods, and you'll never quite know what's going on in his mind. He needs discipline from the start. He loves a good fight and often wins. He wants his own way and can be fearsome in his dogged determination. Channel his courage and energy into games and sport. He has a remarkable memory and will work hard and faithfully for those he loves and trusts.

GIRL — This quiet child is a bundle of energy — a potential women's libber. She rarely loses a battle or forgets the offenses that caused it, and her intuitive and logic enables her to assess a situation or person swiftly and accurately. Her calm exterior covers a seething mass of emotion. She was born with the conviction that she is at least the equal of any male, and is a keen verbal fighter with stinging power. She appears to be tireless and some physical outlet should be found for her intense energy.

Sagittarius

(Nov. 22 - Dec. 21)

BOY — He's intelligent with an insatiable curiosity. He will instinctively know if you lie and will be hurt by it. But if you can explain rules to his satisfaction, he'll be happy and cooperative. He's honest and expects the same from others. The humor system was designed for him. It's not his nature to deceive, and he can't love with his conscience unless he tells you all. This child is going places, academically and otherwise, fast. He badly needs an applause. A little practical joker, life with him will never be dull.

GIRL — She is a good-natured, charming, enthusiastic, curious little bamboy tornado. She needs your attention constantly because her curiosity and adventurous spirit may get into trouble. She has a remarkable memory and will work hard and faithfully for those she loves and trusts.

Capricorn

(Dec. 22 - Jan. 19)

BOY — Patience and perseverance are among his finer qualities, along with reliability and punctuality. He doesn't depend on your constant love and attention — he's an introvert. He may have to be taught that life can be fun, but while he'll rarely initiate a joke he'll enjoy a good laugh.

Economy in words and actions is his motto, and he's a born realist.

He's also a born gentleman and knows instinctively the correct thing to do.

GIRL — This little girl will never lose her inborn sense of dignity. Her her innate knowledge of the correct thing to do and say can be unnerving. Bad language, an untidy house, misplaced toys will irritate her. She's not an early starter in walking or talking, but when she does start she'll be deliberate, careful and precise.

You may find her a homebody to a fault — she may prefer to potter around the house than play physical games.

But don't be fooled if she appears meek. She's watchful of any opportunity to improve her lot in life and will be quick to take it.

Aquarius

(Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)

BOY — This child's insights and perception are highly developed and will become obvious at an early age. While he's outgoing, he's not strong on rocking, cuddling and kissing. And he'll convince his way is right. He's a strange mixture of caveman and space explorer, but much more intellectual than physical. He likes groups but individuals tend to bore him. His cheerful exterior often hides an agitated interior of nervous tension. Be tolerant of his way-out moods and accept him for what he is — a kind, lovable little eccentric.

GIRL — She'll prove early in life that she dances to the beat of a different drum. Wandering in her dream world, and as a toddler, she is accident-prone. She lives in the future, and her intuition can be amazing. This makes her highly nervous, anxious, and impatient — but not hurtful — when she sees stupidity in others. Try to keep the home environment friendly and stable to help reassure her fears. Her curiosity is boundless. She is intelligent, but gets bored very easily. When she does apply herself she'll surprise you with her knowledge.

Pisces

(Feb. 19 - March 20)

BOY — He was born to dream and sometimes loses sight of the difference between fact and fiction. But he is reliable, yet easy-going. He's also kind, sensitive and aware of others' needs. He will never intentionally hurt anyone, but he tends to forget what time he should be home. His gentleness can appear a weakness, but he has inner strength. Encourage his efforts.

GIRL — Her whole existence is a succession of fantasies. For her the world is a stage and she can be quite a character, playing on your emotions. She's delicate, gentle, extraordinarily sympathetic and enjoys comforting others. As a child she can be a watcherer, and time means nothing — she is entirely wrapped up in her dream world. She reacts badly to a schedule or rigid routine, and decision making is difficult for her — she'd rather trust to

A major study into the powers of an exceptional psychic

Can this incredible seer actually know what lottery numbers will come up winners?

(and let you win up to $2,000 to $10,000 in 2 months)

This hypnotic stare belongs to Sophros. He is one of those psychics who have the scientific world in a stir (like others we see in the United States and in the Soviet Union). Sophros can see how events will unfold in the near future — such as the outcome of a horserace or lottery. His secret: he expands his amazing faculty of "seeing" using a technique developed by the brilliant mathematician, G. Card. This technique lets him construct an effective mental "screen" which filters out numbers with little or no chance of winning and highlights the "lucky" ones. The Winning Numbers for the next NJ Lottery drawings will be revealed by Sophros, but only to those who meet the following 5 conditions.

How can you receive your Winning Numbers?

This ad is part of a major study into Sophros' psychic powers. Anyone can participate and receive the winning numbers for the next NJ Lottery drawings — if you meet the following 5 conditions. Sophros' message to those meeting the 5 conditions

It is true that I possess unusual powers. Some believe this is due to my direct (and demonstrated) descent from the Knights Templar. This is possible, but not certain. I am president of the Research and Studies Center and work closely with top scientists, psychiatrists and doctors. I have succeeded in adapting a technique discovered by the brilliant mathematician G. Card. He has used it to enter into an extraordinary multi-dimensional space. I have managed to send a virtual "mental screen" which combines perceptual flashes with images of pure psychic vision. I have agreed to collaborate in a major study of my psychic powers because this is the only scientific and final way to prove that they are real, that I can see into the immediate future and that I can make it possible to win large sums of money in the Lottery. Follow my advice carefully and the results will astound you. One final thing: please return the form as soon as possible if you meet the 5 conditions. Do this right now or you will not forget. And receive five stamps. This is all you are asked to do at this time.
